I have called it a nemarkable cave.—The Mommoth Cave of Kentucky has hitherto been designated as the greatest known cave in the world. It may startle your scientific readers to hear me assert the fact, that there

A portion of this cave has been known and visited for ever forty years. This portion is about three miles in length, and is termed the Old Cave. In 1850 a new door from within the old cave was discovered, which extended the caves united to about twelve miles in extent. In 1852 a still newer discovery of ingress was accidently made, which has added eight or ten miles thereto, and disclosed a plan of formation mere extensive and more teamtiful than any haretoline known. TOO PAST vs. TOO SLOW

Enter Mr. Fogy, walking backward and forward in the parlor of his parsonage.

Oh, this crazy world! this crazy world! everything goes by steam, except what runs by lightning! Hark! there is a screech, as if a hundred deviis screamed at once, and then a roar, and the rattle of wheels, and a train of cars rush by like a coract endowed with life.

Everything is on the high pressure system. I welly believe that the earth is a locomotive, with volcanoes for a smoke pipe, and the celestials have built a milroad to "eternal smash," and we are all aboard the train, with a crazy devil for engineer, with the brakemen all drunk or asleep. How can a respectable old mental sufferings would deprive hum of reason, in the folding temporal flood that overwhelmed the low, sandy key, a middle aged gentleman and his family, consisting of a wife and three or four children, were involved in the calamity.

In the midst of the thick gloom, the storm the confusion and terror of the scene, the gentleman became separated from his little family, and barely escaped with his life. The horior and distress of the poor man at the suddien loss of his dear ones, may be imagined by those who love their own wives and children. For several days his friends feared that his mental sufferings would deprive him of reason, narrow. Wait till I get on a chair to climb out of my new dress."

"Wait you huzzy! There goes the bell again. I must go to the door myself or the bell wire will be broke." Mr. Fogy goes to the door, where a young man of eighteen, with patent leather boots, with a patent hat on his patent head, turned out by Fow & Wells, practical phrenologists, stands at the door looking like a live fashion men to repent and live pure lives."

"Oh, that's all out of date. Why, now-adays, a man can become a Christain in 30 seconds by the watch. It don't change his life at all. He can cheat and gamble in politicity and lotteries, and lie himself into office just as well. The parson does up the piety now-adays, and all that a fishionable sinner has to do, is to sign the paper, (creeds I believe they call them.) pay his quarterage, and he can get a free pass on the first class trains, to heaven, where he can 'pre-empt' the site for heavenly mansions, and 'realize' for his in three days.—

A Romance of the Last Island Calamity.

At the time when that terrible catastrophe occurred at Last Island, off the Southern coast of Louisianna, by which so many people were swept bodily into the Gulf by the raging tempest, or overtaken and drowned by the rising flood that overwhelmed the low, sandy key, a middle aged gentleman and his family, consisting of a wife and three or four children, were involved in the calamity.

As the time passed on, preparations for a magnificent wedding proceeded. The gentleman purchased a splendid trousseu, laid out his plans for a bridal tour, and for their subsehis plans for a bridal tour, and for their subsequent domestic settlement, and, in fact, everything went on swimmingly until near the close of his term of probation. The event of a single day in this case, as in thousands of others served to destroy in an instant his matrimonial schemes, though whether his subsequent peace of mind and happiness were not promoted thereby is a question. A short time previous to the day assigned for his wedding he received a letter from his wife—still in the flesh—dated from Rio de Janeiro, informing him that she and one of their children was alive and wall, and would probably be in his arms within a and one of their condren was alive and well, and would probably be in his arms within a very short period.

MESSRS.O. J. WOOD & CO.

Gentlemen: Having heard a great deal about Professors Wood's Hair Restorative, and my hair being quite gray, I made up my mind to lay aside the prejudies which I, in common with a great many persons, had against all manner of patent medicines, and a short time ago I commenced using your article, to test it for myself.

The result has been so very satisfactory that I am very glad I did so, and in justice to you, as well as for the encouragement of others who may be as gray as I was but who having my prejudice without my reasons for setting it aside, are unwilling to give your restorative a trial till they have further proof, and the best proof being occular demonstration. I write you this letter, which you may show
